HOPE ETERNAL.

Hope eternal springs forth from the human breast. We can but hope for the best news possible from our light across the water—and then await accurate news. They say bad news travels quickly and good news slowly, but some way or other under the complicated news espionage system that has been installed down at Washington. Many Rock county boys have received letters from their sons telling of wounds to themselves, death of comrades, and even from wounded themselves, before the official word has been sent from Washington.

Hope springs eternal in the human breast, but one often wonders what will happen next. Our soldier boys are doing the enemy all along the line. They have come into Italy—perhaps some of them into Italy. It is not there by this time—and so the war continues. It takes three times the men actually on the fighting line to remain behind as reserves or in one capacity or another, still we know how impatient those behind the actual battle front are for a part in this war. They need news of their boys. They will have their taste of it before it is all ended. It is not this month or next, this year or perhaps next, that the real fighting is going to end. It is some time in the dim distance, and not until the German people themselves, worn out and exhausted by the demands of the military—take a hand in the ending of the struggle, that we may hope for peace. Austria is ready for peace now. The peace is not with the German people, but with the German people. The "dual empire" is on the verge of disintegration.

However the power of Germany will prevent this being a serious menace to its plans, but it will eventually become one of the peace motives. German rule is one purely and simply military. It knows nothing else. It wants nothing else. The last year, it has been in the line of the element of disintegration. It is quieted and obliterated we shall have war, even if we drive them back over the Rhine.

IMPOSSIBILITIES.

Endlessly the German "Junkers" hope to delude the common people of Germany as long as possible as regards the war. Look at the latest terms of peace. An eastern correspondent writes:

In the best sort of peace terms given out from Berlin, in a form for easy digestion, there is one significant paragraph. The other proposals can be dismissed with contempt, but this contains something which is vital to ourselves:

2. Freedom of the seas, the dismantling of Gibraltar and the Suez canal and the right for Germany to have coaling stations.

Gibraltar has played no appreciable part in this war, and France is the majority stockholder in the Suez canal. She has the majority of directors on the board and the administrative offices are in Paris. What dismantling of the canal may mean no one knows, and this may be taken as the customary arrogant insult to Britain and France. The essence of the condition lies in its third clause.

Germany in peace times had the absolute use of all coaling stations in the British Empire or elsewhere; her warships and merchantmen could get all the coal they needed at Singapore or Kwangtung or other nations. But in this demand the Germans do not mean coaling stations. The term is used with the deliberate intention to deceive. What they mean is naval bases.

This is a demand which threatens the whole world, coming as it does from a power which in time of peace has been a peace-loving neighbor. It is a demand for the right to have a gun aimed at the Panama canal. Anything in South America would be a threat to our sister republics on this continent and would represent the surrender of the Monroe Doctrine.

And from whom are these naval bases to be taken? They are the property of other nations, but that makes no difference to Germany if she thinks she wants them. Perhaps the United German newspapers profess to count will be included a naval base on our Atlantic coast within easy reach of a good supply of coal.

There you have a volume of facts in a nutshell for consideration. Is there a red-blooded American who wants to bow down to such a demand? Not here in Rock county, if we may judge by the temper of the boys who have been called upon to fight our battles for us.

Let's have a clear understanding of affairs. The coming fair held under the auspices of the Janesville Park association is a genuine fair and not a race meet. It is to the interest of every farmer in Rock county to have an exhibit there and to attend and view the exhibits of their neighbors.

In criticizing police conditions many old-timers often bark back to the days when Janesville had one city marshal, known from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, and say what wonders he could do if he was in charge. Not depending the police conditions, even that well known and much revered gentleman referred to could keep order with about as much success as—well, William Jennings Bryan being elected president. Times and conditions have changed and we must meet new conditions with a new order of affairs.

Too much can not be said in praise of the out of door work that these war gardens have developed among the very people that needed them. The thought of a good supply of potatoes in the cellar this coming winter is satisfaction enough for the toil expended.

With pork at the high price it continues to sell at, a mess of pork and beans will be a luxury this coming winter. We are told to save beef and pork, and when we try and buy anything else we find prohibitive prices, so what are we to eat in the meat line?

Robinson Crusoe cured his own grubs and found that a good sized bunch made a meal with a little goat's milk. It is not too late for a whole lot of citizens to find the grubs and dry them and buy a goat or two for the winter's supply of food.

Unless Janesville wants to have the federal authorities step in and take control of the liquor traffic some of the numerous "blind pigs" should be raided immediately before the federal officers take a hand in the game.

One often wonders what becomes of all the lost pins. Millions are made daily, yet the demand always keeps the supply up. If the average man wants a pin at home it is like looking for a needle in the haystack.

It rather looks as though Rock county residents would have to cut down their shade trees for fuel this winter unless something radical is done to bring in the supply of coal.

Handicraft is always a better judgment than foresight, but still the man who looks into the future and plans accordingly succeeds, where the man who waits developments fails.

WHO'S WHO in the Day's News

COL. GEORGE F. DOWNEY. Centralization on a gigantic scale is the aim of the government in conducting the war for democracy. The latest centralization of authority in one man is an order placing Colonel George F. Downey of the army in charge of the purchase of millions of dollars worth of supplies for the Americans in the army cantonments at home and overseas.

Downey has been the depot quartermaster in Washington. At a new position he will direct the work of a dozen purchasing agents distributing zone offices scattered throughout the country.

Col. George F. Downey.

Col. George F. Downey. He also will be in general charge of supply depots recently established by the war department. These contain enormous quantities of supplies ready for immediate removal to any point. Clothing and clothing the Yanks require business methods. The costly blunders made during the Spanish-American war are being avoided because the politicians are not dominating departments directing the work for keeping a vast army supplied.

Downey is a clean-cut, handsome, athletic looking officer, whose hair is tinged with gray. His methods are direct and warlike, and he will stand little chance of putting one over on the business agent of the government.

Just Folks

OUT OF LUCK. If you've tried to jump the traces, an' have sought the cheery places, an' have reckoned you could fix it so you never would be mislead, But you find out in the morning that they got you without warning.

An' they've put your name an' number on the extra duty list. Do you adored bit o' slaving without a whining machine they give you an' don't even try to buck.

Take the game an' keep on grinning, an' then make a fresh beginning. It's the price you pay for a paying just for being out o' luck.

It's a queer game, this o' fightin', an' it's a queer truth I'm writin'. Men will go for weeks through dangers an' will never feel a hurt. While their stock o' luck is lastin', all the shells the -Puns are castin'.

Will be powerless to get 'em as they're scratchin' the dirt. Then one day when war is happenin' an' there's nothing due to happen, An' the sector's line is quiet by a sniper one is struck.

An' he dies right at his station, an' the only explanation Is the answer of his comrades when they whisper "Out o' luck."

So it's no use frettin' 'sighin', when the signal high is flyin'. There's no way o' dodgin' bullets. They will hit you or they won't; An' when the line advances, every soldier runs his chances.

Those with luck get back to billets, an' the ones without it, don't. Play the game an' keep on goin' through the fields that death is winnin'.

Follow orders to the letter, an' don't ever lose your pluck. Keep in mind when shells are hissing there are some that they're missing.

So just pray to God above you that you won't run out o' luck.

UNIVERSITY REGENTS HONOR L. A. MARKHAM

At the recent meeting of the University Regents held in Madison, an appointment which will interest Rock county people was made when L. A. Markham, a former Rock County boy was appointed to do Y. M. C. A. work in Russia. Mr. Markham was formerly superintendent of the Rock County Y. M. C. A. and is well known in Janesville. He left Janesville some weeks ago for New York, and is no doubt by the time he sailed for Russia where he will take up Y. M. C. A. work.

ROY K. MOULTON

And we are still waiting anxiously to see what is going to happen to George V. buckwheat cake is a buckwheat cake, no matter who eats it.

A brotherhood supreme across the seas has swept. And, in this maddest year, The sanest Fourth has kept.

A colored regiment was marching by the other day and somebody yelled, "Hello, George!"

Ninety-five per cent of the men turned to face the speaker and showed their teeth and grinned.

General Pershing kisses the pretty young misses who present him with bouquets.

The number of bouquets presented has increased rapidly. Where are those horrors of war they used to speak about?

The national emblem of Germany is the poison ivy. The national flower, sometimes called the Kaiser flower, is known in this country as the skunk cabbage.

Fifty cents for a haircut will be the new order in a few weeks, it is said. Well, we can put it in curl papers and braids if we have to, and then again we can get jobs as professional piano players or proprietors of Wild West shows.

Always a solution.

THE TIDE. By Tony Emmons. Tide of the valiant—swift tide of the Right—Ever thy gleaming currents outward surge, Straight to the far, war-ridden, bleeding lands, Numbered by the fury of the Teuton's scourge.

Tide, clear and resolute—soon thou shalt flood Over the deeds of the merciless Hun, Cleansing the world of that dastardly foe.

But thy pure might will victory be won! Tide of our nation's manhood, true and brave—It shall not be in vain thy strength is spent! Bear thou abroad fair Freedom and Ebb to the home-shores, so proudly content.

A young lady in Syracuse wears a pin with nine service stars on it. Not nine brothers—nine sweethearts. The real war will start when this one is over.

They don't use "steam rollers" in politics any more. "Steam rollers" are obsolete. Now the politicians use tank tactics.

The movement for the conservation of songbirds has our heartiest support. And while about it be sure and save Gull-Gull and Geradine.

ORFORDVILLE REBEKAHS HELD INTERESTING MEET

The Rebekahs of District No. 23 held a very interesting and enthusiastic meeting on Wednesday at Orfordville. A large delegation of ladies from Janesville, Beloit, Port Atkins, Iton and Evansville, were in attendance.

The Orfordville ladies served a most excellent dinner at noon, and received many compliments on their culinary skill, and the organization, many on their neat, commodious building, having one of the prettiest dining rooms in the state.

All appreciated the privilege of having for our guest of honor, Mrs. Cora Dickinson, of Janesville Post State President, and Mrs. Lizzie Crumb of Milton, Assembly Warden. These sisters are always an inspiration and help, and have done much to raise the high standards of work in our district.

The question box proved both interesting and instructive. A short literary program was given, and work of the order in general, discussed. All returned to their homes feeling that a pleasant and profitable day had been spent.

The next meeting will be held at Milton.—Sec.

WOMEN SENTENCED ON "VAG" CHARGE

Bessie Harding and Hattie Lichtfus Receive Ninety Days Each in Municipal Court This Morning

It does not pay to loaf in this city whether you are a man or woman. Bessie Harding and Hattie Lichtfus, when they were given ninety days each on the charge of vagrancy, were corrected.

Both of the women were arrested last evening, by Chief Champion, as being vagrants. They both admitted in court this morning that they had not been working for several months, but they claimed that they were going to work Monday morning.

When arraigned before Judge Chas. Lauder, who is taking Judge Maxfield's place, they portrayed the part of the oppressed and both admitted that they supposed they would have to plead guilty. They were given ninety days, but they could plead not guilty and have a trial.

Both of the women have been in the city before and without a great deal of deliberation they entered pleas of guilty.

Thomas Magdairns when arraigned on a charge of vagrancy became indignant and demanded a trial and a lawyer. He stated that he had been working up to last Tuesday and that he had injured his ankle by playing with some children in Monterey.

On his plea of not guilty he was held under $200 bonds until August 7th, at ten o'clock.

COBB IS THROUGH IF WAR CONTINUES

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS
 New York, Aug. 2.—If the world war continues next year Ty Cobb will not be seen in action, no matter how baseball stands.
 With a long winter ahead and many uncertainties as to what may develop, it is by no means certain that baseball will not be open this season, but with war still raging Ty will be among the missing.

During a recent visit of the Detroit Tigers to Washington, Cobb told at length that this was to be his last season in the game until after the war. And at the time he was by no means sure that it would not be his last under any conditions.
 The Georgia Peach told his Washington friend that he meant to get into the big game somewhere and do what he could to help the cause of the Allies. Cobb is 40 years old and his playing days are numbered, but his decision to hang up the spikes was not made until he was told that the war was going to last a long time. He is not going to be governed by what baseball club owners do in the future if the war goes on. The game is going to lose many stars who have a number of good seasons ahead of them. An early peace is the only thing that will bring back into the harness.

Sport Snap Shots

Recent pictures from France show that George Carpentier, famous French boxer, still has time to be a little boxing, but it is only for the pleasure of his soldier comrades and to some worthy war fund. And incidentally these pictures show that the French boxer is a good physical specimen unless his wounds have injured him internally.
 Carpentier is one of the many boxers who have shown their sportsmanship and fairness by dropping their gloves to don a rifle or man a cannon.
 Discussion of the French idol brings to mind the fact that when the war is over the boxing now in the world will be the men to date terms. The boxers and managers who are still trying to make the public and grow fat while the other stars are fighting for them and their kind will be the dogs at the back door, howling for something to eat.
 George comes through the war shipshaped, would like to see him in action, set him up against any heavyweight, but a few friends, who would get a look at them occasionally to what his appetite and then let the bout proceed.
 It must grieve the big league baseball managers to know there are some things in the world bigger than the national commission, the war for instance.

Five national championships have been scheduled for the tournament of the United States National Lawn Tennis association on the turf of the West Side Tennis club at Forest Hill next month.
 Four of the events on the program are confined to singles for boys, for juniors, for men and for veterans. The fifth event is to be the much talked of doubles, a pairs composed of father and son.
 It is the first time in the history of the national tournament that such an ambitious program and one having such breadth of scope has been attempted.
 That the interest of the war department is keen for the development of all sports and is in a constant endeavor to physical education of citizens and possible recruits was shown by the presence at the session of two officials from Washington.

Speaking of fighters, it hots up that Frank Moran, heavyweight fighter, recently married, has escaped death. He has his thumb in an elevator door, blood poisoning developed and doctors stated that only his perfect constitution carried him through.

The American League, apparently on its last legs, is looking for a General Fox to stop the drive of the Red Sox, an someone else can get a look at the pennant before the curtain is rung down.
 This is a regular fight review today. We have just learned the fact that "Big" Mackay, at one time a clever boxer and later athletic secretary at Camp Merritt, N. J., is going to the front. He will have a special position with the Knights of Columbus. He's above the draft age.
 It is interesting to note that Arthur F. Duffey and Thomas G. Burke, former world's champion athletes, have been appointed respectively physical director and athletic instructor in the aviation corps with the ranks of lieutenants. Duffey was the first man credited with running the 100-yard dash in 2 3/5 seconds, while Burke held the world's 600-yard and 440-yard records.
 Fred Becker, Iowa's famous football star, picked as an all-conference center three years ago, has been wounded in France and is in a hospital with a broken arm and explosive shell in one shoulder. He was wounded in a battle around Chateau Thierry. The Hawkeye crack has been in the trenches since October.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Lieut. H. Palmerson Williams and his fiancée, Marquerite Clark.

MARQUERITE CLARK, the little girl of the stage and who will never grow up, is engaged to be married. Lieutenant H. Palmerson Williams is the lucky man. Reports of the engagement have been rumored for weeks but no statement was given out until last week when Clara Clark, sister of the little star, made a formal announcement.
 Miss Clark recently returned from Washington where she has been the guest of friends and where her fiancé has been stationed in the engineering division of the army.
 The two have known each other for many years, but had not seen each other for some time until Marquerite was in New Orleans. The engagement was announced in the interest of the third liberty loan. It was late at second sight and hence the engagement.
 Lieut. Williams is the son of a wealthy lumber dealer and at present has a purchasing and engineering position with the government. Miss Clark spent her vacation in Washington where Lieut. Williams has been stationed.
 At the end of her vacation she returned to New York to start work at the studios on "The Three Bears." She will continue her work for the picture which all women should be interested in.
 No date has been set for the wedding owing to the uncertainty of Lieut. Williams' assignment, but should he be ordered overseas they will be married immediately.
 Perhaps the marriage license will satisfy many inquisitive motion picture fans who claim that Marquerite is even older than the diamond says she is.

MORE ABOUT CUPID'S ACTIVITIES
 Cupid seems to keep busy in the motion picture world both on and off the screen. Here are a few of the latest:
 Gladys Brockwell was married last week to Harry Edwards, formerly a motion picture director, but now in the United States army. Gladys went all the way to Camp Lewis, Wash., for the event. Greater love than this has no man or woman. After a brief honeymoon Gladys hurried back to the studio and started acting in a cinema version of Elsie Ferguson's former stage vehicle, "The Strange Woman." Gladys says there is nothing like a military wedding and honeymoon and that she will never have any other kind after this.

Alma Rubens was reported married to Franklin Farnum. Both denied the rumor vigorously, but after some persuasion Miss Rubens admitted she was engaged to Mr. Farnum who says the wedding will not occur before the first of the coming year.

Charles Chaplin, the Charlie of the big unruly foot and absurd little mustache is meant, denies he is engaged to Mildred Harris. Miss Harris is an interpreter of the more tragic roles found in melodramas.

Says Mr. Chaplin: "We are merely good friends, that is all. I know, absolutely nothing about the diamond ring Miss Harris is wearing, except that it is a very pretty ring."

Orin Johnson, well known to screen and stage as a leading man, was married recently to Mrs. Isabel B. Smith, widow of the late Charles Robinson Smith, wealthy Wisconsin lumberman, whose estate is estimated to exceed $20,000,000. The couple were wed in New York, in the presence of fifty invited guests. Johnson will continue his stage work.

Leo McIlinn received a long distance telephone call from County Clerk G. Harrington to report at Elk Horn, today to go to Syracuse, N. Y. George Nichols and Lawrence of this city go to the same place today.

Mrs. J. L. Patton has returned from a visit with her daughter in Sheboygan. Her sister, Mrs. Millard of Chicago, is here for a short visit.

HOAG'S CORNERS
 Hoag's Corners, July 31.—Miss Eleanor Lipke spent Tuesday afternoon with Miss Nellie Logan.
 Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Brown and family visited at Frank Arnold's Sunday D. M.
 Miss Mattie Hoag is spending this week with Miss Ella Jacobs of Janesville.
 Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Gooch have returned to their home in Janesville, after visiting in this vicinity.

 Mr. and Mrs. James Guernsey and Fred Lipke of Camp Grant were entertained at August Lipke's Sunday.
 Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Stevens called at A. Hoag's Sunday evening.
 Thrashing is on its way in this vicinity.
 Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Saunders called at George Monro's and following their clear outing from here were Janesville callers Saturday evening.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE
 A SIMPLE CASE.
 The great detective, Sheerluck Bones, sighed a sigh of utter content for he was very ambitious and he had nothing to do. So, seating himself back in his Packerham rocking chair and putting his feet upon his antique oak desk, he smoked real ten-cent cigars and dexterously puffed rings and squares up toward the ceiling.
 Much to his dismay, a client was ushered in, and quickly regarding his business posture and following his clear outline from the window, the great detective prepared for his next case.
 "You are Ricky Doux," said the great detective.
 "Why, how did you know?" asked the little man, for it was he.
 "By your card you just handed me," answered the great detective.
 "And you are married?" further deduced the great detective, cleverly.
 "Wonderful! And how did you know that?" queried the little man.
 "By the number of buttons of your elderly vest," answered the great detective, superiorly.
 "You're the man for me!" exclaimed the little man. "I want you to find out—"
 "You want to know what your wife sent you for, don't you?" asked the great detective.
 "Yes, what is it?—what is it?" eagerly asked the little man.
 "It is here on this little piece of paper you dropped just now," answered the great detective, and the little man snatched it out of his hand and prepared to depart.
 "Return," commanded the great detective. "Come back! You owe me something for my deductions!"
 "You've got my name; send me a bill," returned the little man.
 "But I haven't your address!" called the great detective.
 "That's for you to deduct!" snapped back the little man, laughing victoriously.
 The great detective came back into the room with his half-smoked cigar and settled back dejectedly into the chair once more.

"A Woman of Redemption"

This is the sort of a screen story you'll like. It's filled to the brim with beautiful scenic effects, swift action and splendid characterization and June Elvidge was never more charmingly attractive.

Charles Chaplin, the Charlie of the big unruly foot and absurd little mustache is meant, denies he is engaged to Mildred Harris. Miss Harris is an interpreter of the more tragic roles found in melodramas.

Says Mr. Chaplin: "We are merely good friends, that is all. I know, absolutely nothing about the diamond ring Miss Harris is wearing, except that it is a very pretty ring."

Orin Johnson, well known to screen and stage as a leading man, was married recently to Mrs. Isabel B. Smith, widow of the late Charles Robinson Smith, wealthy Wisconsin lumberman, whose estate is estimated to exceed $20,000,000. The couple were wed in New York, in the presence of fifty invited guests. Johnson will continue his stage work.

Leo McIlinn received a long distance telephone call from County Clerk G. Harrington to report at Elk Horn, today to go to Syracuse, N. Y. George Nichols and Lawrence of this city go to the same place today.

Mrs. J. L. Patton has returned from a visit with her daughter in Sheboygan. Her sister, Mrs. Millard of Chicago, is here for a short visit.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE
 A SIMPLE CASE.
 The great detective, Sheerluck Bones, sighed a sigh of utter content for he was very ambitious and he had nothing to do. So, seating himself back in his Packerham rocking chair and putting his feet upon his antique oak desk, he smoked real ten-cent cigars and dexterously puffed rings and squares up toward the ceiling.
 Much to his dismay, a client was ushered in, and quickly regarding his business posture and following his clear outline from the window, the great detective prepared for his next case.
 "You are Ricky Doux," said the great detective.
 "Why, how did you know?" asked the little man, for it was he.
 "By your card you just handed me," answered the great detective, cleverly.
 "And you are married?" further deduced the great detective, superiorly.
 "Wonderful! And how did you know that?" queried the little man.
 "By the number of buttons of your elderly vest," answered the great detective, superiorly.
 "You're the man for me!" exclaimed the little man. "I want you to find out—"
 "You want to know what your wife sent you for, don't you?" asked the great detective.
 "Yes, what is it?—what is it?" eagerly asked the little man.
 "It is here on this little piece of paper you dropped just now," answered the great detective, and the little man snatched it out of his hand and prepared to depart.
 "Return," commanded the great detective. "Come back! You owe me something for my deductions!"
 "You've got my name; send me a bill," returned the little man.
 "But I haven't your address!" called the great detective.
 "That's for you to deduct!" snapped back the little man, laughing victoriously.
 The great detective came back into the room with his half-smoked cigar and settled back dejectedly into the chair once more.

BARNES CIRCUS PARADE IS ONE THAT MUST NOT BE MISSED

It is customary with all tented traveling aggregations, as a prelude to the performances, to give a street parade. The A. G. Barnes big four-ring trained animal circus, which will visit in Janesville on August 8th is no exception to this rule.

The Barnes shows do give a parade and it is a parade that should be seen whether the performances are seen or not.

A. G. Barnes, the sole owner of the show, realizes that there are many poor people to whom the coming of a circus is an annual event. They can afford to pay to see the performance.

This is particularly true this year. In order that they may not be disappointed, he has organized a parade this year that far exceeds any other that has ever been attempted. There is positively something to see that are really worth seeing.

In addition to the many open dens of animals, glided chariots, bands of music, herds of elephants, camels, llamas, zebras, dazzling tableau wagons, allegorical and historical floats, there are many new and never before seen features. Elephants in harness, pigs that actually draw diminutive wagons, llamas and zebras and even camels driven just the same as horses. These are some of the features of the A. G. Barnes street parade that no other show has ever attempted. Then there are the always funny clowns. These mirth-provokers are busy every minute. They have their own jazz band and what they cannot do with musical instruments has never been done, and a whole lot of things that will never be done again.

The parade is over two miles in

PETEY DINK—PETEY WASN'T THINKING OF AERIAL ATTACKS.

Gunner Depew

By ALBERT N. DEPEW

Ex-Gunner and Chief Petty Officer U. S. Navy—Member of the Foreign Legion of France—Captain Gun Turret, French Battleship Cassard—Winner of the Croix de Guerre.

Copyright, 1918, by Betty and Britton Co., Through Special Arrangement With the George Matthews Adams Service.

I was unconscious immediately from the blow and from the quantity of gas which I must have swallowed. This gas did me a great deal of damage and gives me dizzy spells often to this day. I do not know what happened during the rest of the engagement, as I did not regain consciousness until three days later at sea. But I heard in the hospital that the French super-dreadnaught Jeanne d'Arc and the light cruiser Normandy were in it as well as ourselves, though not at the time I was wounded, and that we had all been pretty well battered. The Cassard lost 90 men in the engagement and had 48 wounded. Some of our turrets were twisted into all manner of shapes and part of our bow was carried away. One of our lieutenants was killed in the engagement.

I was told that both the Werft and the Kaiserliche Marine were sunk in this engagement. I have seen pictures of sailors from the Werft who were prisoners at internment camps.

When we arrived at Brest the wounded were taken from the ship in stretchers and after we had been rescued for about fifteen minutes on the deck put into ambulances and rushed to the hospital. On the way those who could be carried out of the ambulance and had a great time with the people along the streets, many of whom they knew, for the Cassard was a Brest ship. And of course the women and children yelled, "Vive la France!" and were glad to see the boys again, even though they were badly done up.

Some of our men were bagged all over the face and head and it was funny when they had to tell their names to old friends of theirs, who did not recognize them. As soon as one of the Brest people recognized a friend of his he would go to get cigarettes and other things for him and some of them almost beat us to the hospital.

I do not know, of course, just what the surgeons did to me, but I heard that they had my eyeball out on my cheek for almost two hours. At any rate they saved it. The thigh wounds were not dangerous in themselves and if it had not been for the rough treatment they got later on they would be quite healed by this time, I am sure.

I really think I got a little extra attention in the hospital in many ways, for the French were at all times anxious to show their friendliness to America. Every time my meals were served there was a little American bag on the platter and always a large American flag draped over the bed. I had everything I wanted given to me at once and when I was able to, all the cigarettes I could smoke, which were not many.

While I was still in bed in the hospital I received the Croix de Guerre.

I Received the Croix de Guerre.

which I had won at the Dardanelles. The presentation was made by Lieutenant Barbey. He pinned an American flag on my breast, a French flag beneath it and beneath that the war cross. He kissed me on both cheeks, of course, which was taking advantage of a cripple. But it is the usual thing with the French, as you know—I mean the kissing, not the meanness to cripples.

When he had pinned the medal on he said he thanked me from the bottom of his heart for the French people, and also thanked all the Americans who had come over from their own land to help a country with which most of them were not connected. He said it was a war in which many nations were taking part, but in which there were just two ideas, freedom and despotism, and a lot more things that I cannot remember. He finished by saying that he wished he could decorate all of us.

Of course it was great stuff for me and I thought I was the real thing, sure enough, but I could not help thinking of the remark I have heard here in the States—"I thank you and the whole family thanks you." And it was hard not to laugh. Also it seemed funny to me, because I did not really know just what they were giving me the medal for—though it was for one of two things—and I do not know to this day. But I thought it would not be polite to ask, so I let it go at that.

There were twelve other naval officers who were present and they and all the other people did a lot of cheering and vived me to a fare-you-well. It was great stuff, altogether, and I should have liked to get a medal every day.

One day I received a letter from a man who had been in my company in the Foreign Legion and with whom I had been pretty chummy. His letter was partly in French and partly in English. It was all about who had been killed and who had been wounded. He also mentioned Murray's death, which he had heard about, and about my receiving the Croix de Guerre. I was wishing he had said something about Brown, whom I had not heard from and who I knew would visit me if he had the chance.

But two or three days later I got another letter from the same man and when I opened it out tumbled a photograph. At first all I saw was that it was the photograph of a man crucified with bayonets, but when I looked at it closely I saw it was Brown. I fainted then, just like a girl.

When I came to I could hardly make myself think about it. Two of my pals gone! It hurt me so much to think of it that I crushed the letter up in my hand, but later on I could read parts of it. It said they had found Brown this way near Dixmude about two days after he had been reported missing. So three of us went over and two stayed there. It seems very strange to me that both of my pals should be crucified and if I were superstitious I do not know what I would think about it. It made me sick and kept me from recovering as fast as I would have done otherwise.

Both Brown and Murray were good pals and very good men in a fight. I often think of them both and about the things we did together, but lately I have tried not to think about them much because it is very sad to think what torture they must have had to stand. They were both of great credit to this country.

The American consul visited me quite often and I got to calling him Sherlock because he asked so many questions: we played lots of games together, mostly with dice, and had a great time generally. After I became convalescent he argued with me that I had seen enough, and though I really did think so—however much I disliked what I had seen—he got my discharge from the service on account of physical inability to discharge the usual duties. After I had been at the hospital for a little over a month I was discharged from it, after a little party in my ward with everyone taking part and all the horns blowing and all the records except my favorite dirge played one after another.

Sherlock arranged everything for me—my passage to New York, clothing, etc. I ran up to St. Nazaire and saw my grandmother, loafed around a while and also visited Lyons.

After a short time I returned to Brest and got my passage on the Georgic for New York. I had three trunks with me full of things part and all the horns blowing and all the records except my favorite dirge played one after another.

Pleasant Fields Of Holy Writ

THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Third Quarter, Lesson V, Luke II, 42-52, 2 Peter I, 5-3, August 4, 1918.

Golden Text: The path of the righteous is as a shining light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day. Proverbs IV, 18.

GROWING STRONGER.

It is said that the path of light discernable upon the dark face of the moon are really mountain peaks that rise so high that they are capped with sunshine. The period between the Nativity and the beginning of Jesus' public ministry make a dark hemisphere. The years pass without authentic record. Religious romance it is true has filled Jesus' boyhood with legends of the display of his miracle-working power for the amusement or awe of his playmates at Nazareth. But all this is unnecessary and untrue. The one certain point of light that does rise in the silent darkness is significant and abundantly sufficient. On a certain day a singing caravan approached Nazareth and such of the people as were minded to attend the feast at Jerusalem joined it, among them Jesus' parents and himself. Their voices joined with those who were chanting the Songs of David. At length the city burst upon their vision and the psalm reached its high grace note as they cried "Our feet shall stand still within thy gates, O Jerusalem!"

Every part of the temple, every article of furniture, every function of priest had a thrilling charm and fascination for the devout youth. He saw the depth below death in each, and as he moved with reverent step from place to place, sharing in the service, scrutinizing every thing and person with penetrating glance, all the while glowing with joy and enthusiasm it slowly dawned upon his consciousness that he was appointed of God to some high and holy function of kingship, priesthood, and prophecy. It is recorded that Jesus "succeeded." The clarity of the progress in that sacred environment, delicate computation. When the day was done, from the hastily improvised booth which lived in the family on the slope of Olivet he gazed by the star-light upon the temple unfolding like some giant lily with its golden stamens.

In the morning he wandered in the School of the Rabbis. In its open sitting in the porch, where Hebrew youth of twelve and over were gathered, he became a part of the show what they knew. What surprised the doctors in this Galilean boy was not his presence with them, but the absence in him of all stereotyped rabbinical phrase. No one of the school-men was on him. Here was originally divine, the truth here from the barmecides of gloss and paraphrase. "I am a child," he said, and he gave such ready obedience as calculated to modify their enthusiasm.

The conversation between mother and son on this occasion casts at least a ray upon the inexplicable relation maintaining between parents and child. In us if Mary heard, "Son, here is your first act which transcends my understanding." There is more of paths than of penitence. His answer at once cheerful and respectful, "I have obeyed you," surprised that in his Father's house where his matters are considered, I thought you knew the interest unknown to hold me here."

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

This incident, at first blush a mere pictorial affair, fairly bristles with lessons for parents and children, for teachers and pupils. It is the anatomy of a child's heart for the point that ought not to be overlooked, the help of the child.

The Christian home ought to be an advance upon the Hebrew home; as the New Covenant is better than the Old, Christian ought to surpass Jewish practice. Never child obeyed like this child. He is the divine model of filial piety. Conscious of his high calling, he yet went back to a point that ought not to be overlooked, the help of the child.

But if it was granted that the children of the next generation will not know Jesus, who shall measure the calamity. They'll be orphaned; losing the divinest friend the child ever had.

Jesus' boyhood home was in a physical environment of great beauty. Nazareth was a handful of pearls dropped in a goblet of emerald. From it Herman, Tabor and Carmel, all could be seen, as well as Esdraelon strewn with flowers. They impressed the boy's imagination and were reproduced in parable and discourse.

The social conditions also were unusual. In contrast to Judea Galilee was happy, care-free and unrestrained, having so large an infusion of Greek life as to lead it to be called "Gentile." This too must have had large influence on Jesus.

But the influence of his family life must have been even greater. The Hebrew home was a night-blooming cereus. Paganism had nothing like it. Children were committed to the company of slaves. But in the Jewish home the confidences between children and parents were marked. There were eight distinct stages in the religious nurture of the child. The sacred Name greeted his eye on the doorstep. He had his birthday acrostic from scripture spelling his name. Finally in Jesus' case the chief part of his culture as that which his mother imparted to him of the things she "kept and pondered in her heart."

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEVOTIONAL SERVICE.

ALL FOR CHRIST (2) OUR AMBITIONS.

Motto: To wish is of little account; to succeed you must earnestly desire; and this desire must shorten thy sleep. Ovid.

(Consecration Meeting)

St. Paul likens himself to a ship, under full sail, its course laid out for a desired harbor, its cargo esteemed of high value. Proudly he recites his bill of lading: Circumcision, Israelitism, Benjaminite, Hebrew of Hebrews, Pharisee, Zealous to the point of persecution. In local righteousness blameless. At full head of speed the ship strikes the unyielding rock of the Divine demand. That moment all that was so highly prized is counted as wreckage to be cast over and abandoned. Christ alone is the new cargo of the saved ship.

Dinner Stories

A new sailor on his first shore liberty had just written a letter and was hunting a small box at the station when the conductor shouted "All aboard."

Seeing an ensign across the room he ran up to him and showing the letter into his hand, said, "Mail this for me, porter; here's a dime for the trouble."

A recruit was asked, "Who is your nearest living kin?"

"My aunt," came the answer. Then the questioner asked the answerer correctly until it came to, "In case of death or accident who shall be notified?"

"My mother," he replied. "But," said the officer, "I thought your aunt was the nearest living kin."

"She is," replied the recruit. "She lives two miles from me and my mother lives five."

"Sedentary work," said the college lecturer, "tends to lessen the endurance."

"In other words," butted in the smart student, "the more one sits the less one can stand."

"Exactly," retorted the lecturer, "and if one lies a great deal one's standing is lost completely."

A pretty girl was eagerly watching drill when a rifle volley crashed out. With a demure little scream she sprang back into the arms of the young man standing behind her.

"O," she cried, blushing. "I was frightened by the rifles! Pardon me."

"No need," he said quickly. "Let's go over there and watch the artillery."
